I will miss Jim. He stayed in contact over the years and always had something funny to share. His story about accidentally taking down the Christmas lights with the snowblower was a classic (I think his wife may have done that?) My sincere condolences to the family. Jim was one of a kind. Lori Britton lit a candle in honor of James.

Jim was our neighbor for the last 7 years. We feel so blessed to have gotten to know him and his wife Sue over the years. Both of my sons are engineers so we had lots of great conversations to share with Jim, as well as talking about his love of fishing. Actually, Jim loved everything that was important to him. The world was a better place because of all the impacts Jim made on those who met him. He will be missed. Sue, you and your family are so in our thoughts and prayers. Always, the Britton family.
